Course Description

In this seminar course students will consider the study of foreign policy, focusing most heavily on how critical approaches have contributed to the study of foreign policy in Canada and the United States. We will also review some of the key themes and issues in the current literature including the interplay between race, gender, and foreign policy. Other topics include militarization, the politics of fear, the role of non-state actors, identity, and the Canadian-American relationship.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course students should be able to:

1. Understand the main issues, central theories, and approaches used in the academic literature in foreign policy.
2. Critique the relevant theories scholars employ to better understand foreign policy.
3. Identify and critically discuss the problems with the traditional study and conduct of Canadian and American foreign policy.
4. Identify and critically discuss ethical problems in the practice of foreign policy.
5. Conceive, structure, and write a long research essay related to the course subject.
6. Critically assess and synthesize readings through the completion of short response papers and video reflections.
7. Demonstrate leadership and discussion skills through seminar presentations and participation.

Required Materials and Texts

- All required readings will be available on Avenue to Learn.

Class Format

This seminar course includes weekly classes on Mondays from 9:00AM- 11:20AM, and office hours on Mondays from 12:00 – 1:00PM. Please see the Announcements on Avenue to Learn before our first class on September 12 to familiarize yourself with the course.

Classes will typically include brief course updates, followed by student-led presentations and discussions of weekly readings ('Discussion Leader').

Asynchronous components include weekly readings, discussion reflection recordings, and written assignments.

Course Evaluation – Overview

1. Participation (30%), each class (includes in class participation and recorded reflections)
2. Discussion Leader (20%), due throughout the term
3. Short Response Paper (15%), due throughout the term
4. Research Essay (35%), due December 5, 11:59PM

Course Evaluation – Details

Participation (30%) Each Class

Your participation is an essential part of this seminar. Students are responsible for the required readings, doing the weekly 3-5 minute flip discussion recording, and for participating in the in person class discussion.

The weekly flip recording will be due each Saturday by 11:59PM. This brief recording will include what most struck you from the readings that week. It will end with a proposed discussion question. Given it is only 3-5 minutes long this recording is not meant to demonstrate a full understanding of the readings or topic, but instead should offer a reflection and a question to inspire discussion. You will have an opportunity in the class discussion to expand on your ideas. Please see Avenue to Learn for the Flip link.

Please let the professor know if you foresee any problems with the participation requirements.

Discussion Leader (20%), due throughout the term

Each student will be responsible for leading the discussion for at least one class beginning on Week 3. Depending on the number of students in the seminar, students may have multiple opportunities to lead the class discussion.

The discussion leader will be responsible for selecting one additional reading (or media item) for the class. The additional material should be announced at least one week in advance and placed on Avenue to Learn. The additional material may be drawn from any source and can include short works of fiction, movies, songs etc. as long as it is relevant to the topics discussed in the class on that week. It may also be drawn from the list of optional readings.

The student leading the discussion should prepare a presentation on the topic that identifies the major points for discussion and critically evaluates the arguments made in sources assigned for that topic on the syllabus. The presentation should also draw on one or two additional sources on the topic and present new, related information. Let your own interest be your guide. The student should also explain why they picked the additional source they assigned to the class and highlight its relevance to the subject matter.

The presentation should be no longer than 15-20 minutes and may be broken into smaller segments throughout the class or done as a single presentation.

In their presentations, students should not simply summarize the readings and the additional source/s but instead synthesize the required readings and additional source/s (see Youtube video Summary v. Synthesis: What's the difference? for information about the differences between summary and synthesis).

The goal of the presentation will be to stimulate discussion so the student should frame their comments with this goal in mind as well as raise discussion questions. The presentation should be organized in a way that will complement the discussion.

The student leading the discussion should come to the class with prepared questions that they will use to guide the discussion but should also feel free to formulate questions “on the fly” in response to student interest and the direction of the discussion. Questions may be borrowed from the flipgrid recordings posted by their colleagues.

Short Response Paper (15%), due throughout the term (two weeks from the date the topic was covered in the course)

Students must hand in one response to the readings that reflects on the readings from one week between weeks 3 – 10. The response paper is due the Sunday 11:59PM which is just under two weeks from the date the topic was covered in the class. The last day a response paper can be submitted is Nov 27 (reflecting on week 10).

Response papers will address the readings covered in the particular week within 8 pages (double spaced). In this paper, students should synthesize the readings, relate the readings to the wider course, and most importantly, show that you have thought critically about the readings. Please note that papers must be submitted on Avenue to Learn.

Research Essay (35%), due December 5th (11:59PM)

The essay, approximately 5000 words in length, double spaced, will include a bibliography with at least 20 sources and be properly referenced using APA, MLA, or Chicago style. The paper should address a topic relevant to the course. Please discuss your topic with the professor. Please note that papers must be submitted on Avenue to Learn.

Weekly Course Schedule and Required Readings

Week 1 (Sept 12) Introduction to the course

In our first class on September 12, we will review the course expectations and you will indicate your preferred presentation/discussion leadership dates (leadership opportunities will begin on week 3, Sept 26).

Week 2 (Sept 19) Getting to Know the McMaster library and Flip (asynchronous week/no class)

This week, we will individually learn how to use the online learning technology, Flip, and the McMaster Library website asynchronously. Please complete the tutorials in the 788 Avenue to Learn folder.

Please prepare a short (under 5 minute) Flip recording by September 19th at 11:59PM. In this recording please:

Avenue to Learn

In this course we will be using Avenue to Learn. Students should be aware that, when they access the electronic components of this course, private information such as first and last names, user names for the McMaster e-mail accounts, and program affiliation may become apparent to all other students in the same course. The available information is dependent on the technology used. Continuation in this course will be deemed consent to this disclosure. If you have any questions or concerns about such disclosure please discuss this with the course instructor.

Copyright and Recording

Students are advised that lectures, demonstrations, performances, and any other course material provided by an instructor include copyright protected works. The Copyright Act and copyright law protect every original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work, including lectures by University instructors

The recording of lectures, tutorials, or other methods of instruction may occur during a course. Recording may be done by either the instructor for the purpose of authorized distribution, or by a student for the purpose of personal study. Students should be aware that their voice and/or image may be recorded by others during the class. Please speak with the instructor if this is a concern for you.

Academic Accommodation for Religious, Indigenous or Spiritual Observances (RISO)

Students requiring academic accommodation based on religious, indigenous or spiritual observances should follow the procedures set out in the RISO policy. Students should submit their request to their Faculty Office normally within 10 working days of the beginning of term in which they anticipate a need for accommodation or to the Registrar's Office prior to their examinations. Students should also contact their instructors as soon as possible to make alternative arrangements for classes, assignments, and tests.

Academic Integrity Statement

You are expected to exhibit honesty and use ethical behaviour in all aspects of the learning process. Academic credentials you earn are rooted in principles of honesty and academic integrity.

Academic dishonesty is to knowingly act or fail to act in a way that results or could result in unearned academic credit or advantage. This behaviour can result in serious consequences, e.g. the grade of zero on an assignment, loss of credit with a notation on the transcript (notation reads: "Grade of F assigned for academic dishonesty"), and/or suspension or expulsion from the university.

It is your responsibility to understand what constitutes academic dishonesty. For information on the various types of academic dishonesty please refer to the Academic Integrity Policy.

The following illustrates only three forms of academic dishonesty

- Plagiarism, e.g. the submission of work that is not one's own or for which other credit has been obtained.
- Improper collaboration in group work.
- Copying or using unauthorized aids in tests and examinations.

Conduct Expectations

As a McMaster student, you have the right to experience, and the responsibility to demonstrate, respectful and dignified interactions within all of our living, learning and working communities. These expectations are described in the Code of Student Rights & Responsibilities (the "Code"). All students share the responsibility of maintaining a positive environment for the academic and personal growth of all McMaster community members, whether in person or online.

It is essential that students be mindful of their interactions online, as the Code remains in effect in virtual learning environments. The Code applies to any interactions that adversely affect, disrupt, or interfere with reasonable participation in University activities. Student disruptions or behaviours that interfere with university functions on online platforms (e.g. use of Avenue 2 Learn, WebEx or Zoom for delivery), will be taken very seriously and will be investigated. Outcomes may include restriction or removal of the involved students' access to these platforms

Academic Accommodation of Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who require academic accommodation must contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS) at 905-525-9140 ext. 28652 or sas@mcmaster.ca to make arrangements with a Program Coordinator. For further information, consult McMaster University's Academic Accommodation of Students with Disabilities policy.

Faculty of Social Sciences E-mail Communication Policy

Effective September 1, 2010, it is the policy of the Faculty of Social Sciences that all e-mail communication sent from students to instructors (including TAs), and from students to staff, must originate from the student's own McMaster University e-mail account. This policy protects confidentiality and confirms the identity of the student. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that communication is sent to the university from a McMaster account. If an instructor becomes aware that a communication has come from an alternate address, the instructor may not reply at his or her discretion.

Course Modification

The instructor and university reserve the right to modify elements of the course during the term. The university may change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances. If either type of modification becomes necessary, reasonable notice and communication with the students will be given with explanation and the opportunity to comment on changes. It is the responsibility of the student to check his/her McMaster email and course websites weekly during the term and to note any changes.

Extreme Circumstances

The University reserves the right to change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances (e.g., severe weather, labour disruptions, etc.). Changes will be communicated through regular McMaster communication channels, such as McMaster Daily News, A2L and/or McMaster email.
